

Your Stuff, Delivered!

What Stuff?

"What Stuff do you have?", or, more importantly
"What Stuff will you have in the future?"

Video Stuff

Movies, YouTube, TV Shows, Home Movies, Internet Video

Audio Stuff

Music, Audio Books, Phone Messages

Game Stuff

RPG's, Card Games, Action Games
(Guitar Hero, Sports Games, etc.)

Data Stuff

Presentations, Data, Contacts, Calendars, Maps, Internet Sites, Shopping Lists

Where is my Stuff?

All over the place, in any room of the house.

Home or laptop Computers, Video Players, CD Players, IPODS, MP3 Players, Apple TV Players, ROKU Players, Voodoo Players, SONIS Players,
Music Servers, Video Games (Xbox, PS3, Wii)

Where do I want to use my stuff?

Everywhere!

Any TV in the house, in the garage, on the deck or patio, in my car, when I go for a walk or a jog, when I go on vacation.

How do I access all my stuff from all these places?

It's all about the quality of the delivery.

There is no substitute for a properly wired home that provides adequate security and bandwidth (a large enough conduit to transfer all this information from one place to the other without losing anything.)

All designed to support not only the Stuff you have today, but also the Stuff your going to collect in the future. Nothing is more important than your Stuff!

Tell me more Stuff!

The future is all about the connected home. Simply stated, properly designed systems that provide the ways to distribute and control your Stuff so it is easy to find, enjoyable to watch or hear, and is available anywhere you want to enjoy it.

Think of it as a digital backpack, full of all the goodies to get you through your day.

Technical Stuff

As we roll into the future, our stuff takes up more and more space.

Why? Because technology now provides better and more affordable ways to store and deliver all your stuff! HD TV contains 4X the amount of information than regular TV. Non-Compressed Audio files contains X times the amount of information than an MP3.

You don't want to experience you life in a compressed way (4 hours of sleep, 15 minute football games, and your favorite concert compressed to 10 minutes)
